Oil canning can be defined as a perceived waviness in the flat area of roofing and siding panels. Generally, the period and amplitude of the wave depends on the continuous width of the flat.

Oil canning is an inherent part of the light gauge cold formed metal products, particularly those with broad flat areas.

Oil canning is an aesthetic problem. Normally structural integrity is not affected. Oil canning can sometimes be reduced or eliminated by adding ribs or striations to the panel but even these measures do not assure the elimination of oil canning. Since many uncontrollable factors are involved, Dynamic Metals, LLC can not realistically assure the total elimination of oil canning. Because of this, oil canning is not grounds for panel rejection.

Your signature and initials below waives any responsibility of Dynamic Metals, LLC for any oil canning which may be apparent in the panels during or after installation of the panels.
